

Pat Hogan Legacy Workshop

UN Convention on the Rights of the Child- Article 31

“I Have the Right to Play”

Presenter: Jane Cawley

Date: Saturday, November 18, 2017

Time: 9:00am – 12:00pm (8:30am Registration)

Location: NSCC Waterfront Campus, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia

Cost: $30.00

LIMITED SPACES; MAXIMUM 100 PARTICIPANTS

No refunds: Please send a colleague in your place.

According to Article 31 of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child “...every child has the right to engage in play and recreational activities appropriate to the age of the child...” The role of the early childhood educator is more important than ever because research is telling us that play is essential for the physical and mental health of children. Educators of young children (that would be us) know that play for its own sake is invaluable in a child’s life. We understand that it is the best method to support learning but that it is also essential for the growth of a child’s spirit. Nobody understood this better than Pat Hogan!

In this workshop we will explore the meaning and importance of play and practice strategies to support our ability to be advocates for this right.

We will ask ourselves the following questions...

What do we know about play?

How do we share this knowledge?

Let us be strong and articulate voices as we support every child’s right to play.

Fill out all information below and return:

Name: _____

Address: _____

Email: _____

Home Phone Number: _____ Work: _____

Submit Registration Form and Payment to (All cheques can be made payable to, CCECENS)

Certification Council of Early Childhood Educators of Nova Scotia

C/O NSCCA 3845 Joseph Howe Drive, Suite 102

Halifax, NS

B3L 4H9

Certification Council of Early Childhood Educators of Nova Scotia

